DANIELSON HOLD FOR ILLEGALLY TRANSPORTING LIQUOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Nov. 1.—There was action Wednesday relative to the big motor truck and its load of 240 cases of what the state assumes is real beer, seized Tuesday in the town of Plainfield by Officer Perle Roberts and brought to the state police barracks here.

At a hearing before Justice Arthur Mathewson in Plainfield Wednesday morning, John Winters, Providence, the driver of the truck, was charged with transporting intoxicants illegally and held under bonds of $500 for a hearing that is scheduled for next Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at Central Village.

By that time the state expects to be able to show by testimony what the alcoholic content is of the beer with which the seized truck was laden. Samples of the beer have been sent out to Danielson for analysis, but a report on the analysis had not been received up to late Wednesday afternoon. It may be noted in passing that it is not customary to ship beer in the big motor trucks, and at great expense over such a long overland route as that between Providence and New York, to which city the truck is said to have been headed.

Of special interest is the fact that the big Packard truck on which the beer was being conveyed was released early Wednesday afternoon by the state police and in charge of Winters, the driver who was guiding it when the seizure was made, was taken back to Providence. The truck is a new one and is estimated to be worth about $8,000.

The state police were not inclined to release the truck upon demand of Attorney A. G. Bill of Danielson, retained to represent Winters, but Attorney Bill pointed out to Officer Albert S. Field, in charge of the Danielson bar, that the state police have no authority under the law to hold vehicles seized in Connecticut while such vehicles are engaged in transporting intoxicants and after a conference with state police headquarters at Hartford the truck was ordered released and was relieved of its load of beer, which is now stored at the barracks, and allowed to be taken away. Only federal officials operating under the provisions of the Volstead act have authority to seize and hold vehicles as confiscated that are found engaged in transporting liquor or other intoxicants in this state.

There was no development during Wednesday to indicate that Winters was aware of the nature of the cargo with which his truck was loaded. He is a driver employed by the Affleck Express company of 127 Mountain street, Providence, to drive wherever he is sent with loads. The supposed beer is sealed in cartons. Only the initiated would suspect the packages contained anything more than biscuits or some such innocent product. Drivers are not always told the nature of the shipment they are conveying. Winters may have known what was in the cartons, but there again he may have known nothing at all about their contents. In any event, cash bail was promptly forthcoming for his release. His employers at least had an interest in him and in their truck which he was driving.

In any event, it is fully realized in official quarters that Winters figures in the case in what really is a serious matter. It is certain that he is neither the owner of the truck he is driving nor of its load. The men that shipped the load or were responsible for its shipment and know about the ownership of the beer do not figure in the case at all up to this time and probably never will. They are repeating what is now commonly known as the "beer case" and probably will remain there. In the meantime one wonders how many other beer trucks may be wearing out the roads hereabouts while one is waiting about that happened to get into difficulties in this territory. A thousand watchful guards would be required to answer that question accurately.

At Taftville, R. I., about a mile from Narragansett, the Briggs-Woolen Company will begin to do business in about two weeks. The new concern, which is to operate a six-cent woolen mill, named in honor of Charles Briggs.

Congressman Richard P. Freeman, who is spending this week talking to his constituents in this remote corner of the congressional district he represents, will address a rally of Thompson republicans this Thursday. Thompson has a real fight with the state and the republicans up there are combating the democratic aggressiveness with all their strength.

A new highway that has been under construction between East Thompson and Grosvenordale for several months is not completed as yet, but will be ready in the near future. This is a cut-off that will eliminate two grade crossings that have been the scene of several serious accidents during the past few years. As yet this new road is what may be considered as a private way. A few who have driven over the new route testify as to its quality and to its safety compared to the old West Thompson route that involved negotiating two very dangerous crossings.

L. F. Batty, having completed the enumeration of children between the ages of 4 and 16 within the town of Putnam, has filed his return with the secretary of the town school committee. This report shows that there are 1,993 children of that age in town, an increase of just 15 over the enumeration figure made in the fall of 1921. The enumeration indicated that Putnam's population has increased to approximately 10,000, this estimate based on the well tried out basis that there are five inhabitants of every town.

of the Central Worsted Mills of Central Village, is to be incorporated under the laws of the state of Rhode Island and is to have a capital stock of $150,000, of which $100,000 is common stock and $50,000 preferred stock. Officers of the concern are to be elected within a few days.

The mill the new concern is to operate was formerly the Tarklin Woolen company's plant. With Mr. Bragg in the new venture some of the most successful men in the textile industry in southern New England are identified and the mill also will have the benefit of the equipment established and wealthy New York selling agency.

Mr. Bragg is well known in the textile field in this part of the country. He has been a resident of the town of Plainfield for 15 years, all of the time working in the textile field. Originally he was with the Aldrich and Milner mills, eventually becoming superintendent. S. Edgar Milner and John W. Murdock, a prominent Providence attorney, he built the Plainfield Woolen company plant in Central Village, now the Farnsworth Finney company, and remained with it in the capacity of executive capacity from 1901 to 1906. Then associating himself with a group of interested persons he built the Central Worsted company plant, which manufactures some of the finest worsteds offered to the American trade.

Mr. Bragg will divide his time between his mill in Central Village and the Briggs-Woolen plant in Plainfield. In Central Village the greater part of the time. In his new venture his many friends in this territory will wish him the same success that he has enjoyed in his marked his operations in the neighboring town of Plainfield.

Mrs. Addie Eleanor Bowen, widow of Oliver W. Bowen, died early Wednesday morning at her home on Reynolds street. Mrs. Bowen had been in failing health for a long time and seriously ill for the past four weeks. She was born in Pennsylvania, April 29, 1844, a daughter of Josiah H. and Susan A. Field.

For the greater part of her life Mrs. Bowen has been a resident of Danielson. Her husband was one of the well known citizens of the town and for years he filled public offices including that of selectman.

Mrs. Bowen leaves two sisters, Mrs. Susan A. Tilden of South Manchester and Lettie J. Randall of Willimantic, and a brother, Eugene J. Randall of Willimantic. Mrs. Bowen's sisters have been with her, in turn, during her last illness.

Wets, who have a great deal and seem to be in a little consideration when political parties name their candidates for offices in Killingly and neighboring towns, are carefully studying the same. But they have been put out in advance of next Tuesday's election. They have begun to wonder what they are going to do to assert themselves and their influence in the polls. Wetness does not loom large as a real issue in this campaign in eastern Connecticut, but the ardent wets are out to slash some fair candidates and already have a few subjects for their attention. A certain senatorial district candidate will come in for some slashing from the anti-dry law voters.

It will be ineffective, it is already foretold, but that voters hold that they will have the satisfaction of setting him back a considerable number of votes and lessening his chances of election. Eugene J. Randall, a prominent wets to some voters here by his openly announced attitude in favor of modification of the Volstead act and will benefit by that appeal, while others on the ticket will not. It is a real question, it is known drys, though not talking much about it in these vote-hunting days.

Many a householder in Danielson had to get busy Wednesday and set back porch chairs, couch hammocks and other summer equipment that had not been safely stored away from places where it had been carried by celebrators of Halloween. These celebrators were out in droves Tuesday night and gave the town a real going over, but their activities were so encompassing that a brigade could not have kept tabs upon them. But if they had a good time, few of them were out on Wednesday morning to find fault about it, even those who were made the subjects of raids that entailed a bit of work in setting things straight again.

for every child between the ages of 4 and 16 years.

In the case of Putnam this normally close basis for figuring population may be a bit upset by the fact that this town has within its limits the Windham county temporary home for children, with about 140 inmates. The majority of these children come from other towns of the county than Putnam, but Putnam shares in the expense of educating them, with the other towns of the county, and they should rightfully be accredited to Putnam in making the enumeration on which is based the state's compensation allowed on the enumeration reports.

It is expected that at least 50 members of Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows will leave this city next Saturday evening for the trip to Central Village, where they will unite with members of Protection lodge of that place and Quinebaug lodge of Danielson for a session at which degrees will be conferred upon candidates. Early in December members of Israel Putnam lodge will journey to Hartford, where a team of Israel Putnam lodge will confer a degree upon a neophyte lodge. Whether or not the Hartford trip will be made with automobiles or in a special train is yet to be determined.

By late December the new garage under construction for the Motor Supply company of Canal street will have been completed. The garage is being built in the rear of the Donahue building, and is just off Main street, in the center of the business section.

The new building is to be in two parts, one 50x90 feet, the other 50x60 feet, and will have a capacity of about 100 cars. One part of the garage will include space for a repair shop for the firm's business, while the other part may be used exclusively for storage. The parts will be separated by a few walls and the passage between them will be by means of an automatic operating overhead door.

The building is to be of cement blocks, one story in height, and will have a crumpled steel roof supported by a series of steel posts. The structure will cost in the neighborhood of $20,000, when completed. Foundations are now being put in. Blasting has been necessary in forwarding the work because a large run through property where the garage is being built.

L. F. Batty, director of Putnam's evening school, said Wednesday that 45 were in attendance at the opening session, but it is anticipated that this number will increase during the next few nights. Some of those who are now enrolled are unable to speak English, and several nationalities are represented.

Four non-resident hunters' licenses have been issued by the town clerk, making a total of 109 hunters' licenses to date.

A miscellaneous shower was given Miss Gurnhill Swanson Monday evening at her home in honor of her approaching marriage to Raymond Low, of Brooklyn, N. Y. Miss Swanson received many beautiful and useful gifts, consisting of cut glass, linen, silverware and china. An enjoyable evening was spent in singing and dancing. Various games were played. Piano solos were rendered by Miss Gurnhill Swanson, Miss Lillian Stafford and Miss Helen Erickson. Coffee, cake, ice cream, cookies and candy were served by Miss Mildred Swanson, Miss Ruby Erickson, Mrs. R. Swanson, Mrs. G. Phillips and Mrs. A. Taylor. About thirty guests were present, from Baltic, Norwich and Plainfield.

A tax of $2,148.14 has been assessed against the town as its share of the state tax for the year 1922. This tax is levied in accordance with the provisions of Section 1223 of the General Statutes, Revision of 1915, as amended by Chapter 371 of the Public Acts of 1921, a tax of $2,000,000 being apportioned amongst the 163 towns of the state on the basis of actual receipts from taxes for three years as averaged.

A tax of $227.94 has been also assessed against the town as its share of the military tax for 1922. The same method has been used in apportioning this tax as was used in apportioning the state tax to each town. The amount to be raised this year is $260,499.50. The state treasurer pays 15 per cent. of this amount, and 85 per cent. is to be paid by the town treasurer.

Both of the above taxes are payable to the state treasurer on or before November 10, 1922.

It is again asserted that there is nothing to indicate that a coal shortage will interfere with industry in this vicinity during the winter season. Coal is coming in steadily and all plants will be supplied with a sufficient quantity to keep them operating.

of The Holy Family, Baltic. Each year on October 31st they feel called upon to go outside all previous good times. The programme is a tradition and must begin with a grand march of maskers. This time seven glau owls appeared first, their wise and exclusive air and their well known number told they were dignified seniors. Following them came a curious train: Japanese and gypsies, vestal virgins and Bohemians, flower girls and cavaliers, fat mounds and dancing girls, a queen of hearts and a clown, and of course, witches a-plenty.

Then the Grammar grades made a very pretty group doing Swedish steps extra well though they were Hottentots temporarily.

The gymnasium looked mysterious orange and black with cists and bats and grinning masks all helped on the fear of ghosts; and in fact the Imperial Wizard who led his klan here in '21 wandered in, stared around and vanished behind the piano.

The sack race was really the best event as each number of the teams had to wait her turn to get into the sack. Waiting while another team was going ahead was not easy. The bucking mule which has to be run backwards was very amusing. The winner got a helpful push from another competitor and so landed over the finish line ahead.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan were given a surprise visit Monday evening at their home on Church hill in honor of their 13th wedding anniversary. They were married in Baltic in 1909.

There was a dance Monday evening at Wright's Mills.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Big Halloween Dance.

A Friday night at the state armory, Norwich, the opening dance of the season for the Combat Train takes the form of a Halloween dance and the committee in charge have received hundreds of orders for tickets. On the program, confetti, horns galore and larders for everyone attending. They have also arranged for special lighting effects and the army will be in proper attire for the biggest gathering and the best time they have put over since those last post successes. They have secured the services of Feltorn's orchestra of New London and they are as good as last season's success. On the program, music for the affair is picked out by Feltorn himself, who says "the better the music, the better the crowd." The time begins at 8:30 and all will go home tired and happy. Be there.

Concert Connecticut College.

The New York Philharmonic opened its eighty-first season last week in Carnegie hall with every seat sold. With few changes in the personnel, the orchestra has been strengthened in number over last year and its equipment in solo material as usual meets the requirements of the most exacting composers of orchestral works. On the program in New York were two of the numbers to be given in New London, one of the Debussy's Two Nocturns for orchestra, and Clouds; (2) Festivals, Mr. Stansky's contribution to the desire for modern music on a program.

Last year one thousand people attended the concert given in New London. Now the superb orchestra has been heard, with the entire different program offered this year, every seat in the house should be taken. Tickets will be on sale now at Childsey's, New London.

Continuation of Thrills in Fox Melodrama, Adapted from Stage Success—Proves Screen Triumph—First of Lincoln Carter Thrillers to be Made Into a Motion Picture Play.

"The Fast Mail" a William Fox production adapted from Lincoln J. Carter's stage melodrama and directed by Bernard J. Durning is the feature at the Breed theatre today, Friday and Saturday. Fox melodramas certainly provide the thrills. "The Fast Mail" brushes aside the logical development of a story and just goes after keeping you quivering in dread to the end. It succeeds, for it simply explodes with excitement, literally in one episode.

Moreover, it introduces the world's champion jumping hero. He jumps off his steed in Montana to rescue the heroine. He jumps over a fence, a chasm, a steep precipice; he jumps on the fast mail from a speeding handcar and from the locomotive back into an automobile. He shows the fastest footwork, the most jumps from one Mississippi to another, so that he has to jump into the river. He keeps the audience on the jump.

The scenario is admirably adapted to its hair raising action. The photography and cutting of the scenes are well done that even the most prying reviewer would be unable to tell whether the hero was jumping or not. Charles Jones in this role seems athletic at least, and Miss Ellen Percy likewise is hard to wear out. Adolph Menjou is the scabious Fox villain in the supreme thriller of the season.

Motion picture and education comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Broadway, Thursday, Friday, Saturday.

The feature of the Broadway for the last half of this week is "The Four Diamonds" which offer "A Little Bit of Everything." The Diamonds are well named. They are diamonds among entertainers. They do a little of everything, and everything they do is done well. They sing, dance, sing, dancing and talking and a surprise finish.

Frank Falmaley and Mas Keating appear in Comedy. They are the delight in making happiness for others and in this they succeed.

Amoros & Obeys and the kind of entertainment that immediately gains instantaneous approval.

Stanley Chapman is "Too Full for Words." He portrays the eccentric comedian in drama and with the
